

Day 5

Bloomquist Ranch to Reichs Ranch—16 miles

August 5, 2010

Fresh horses were always waiting for Butch at the Reichs Ranch

7:00am: After all that dancing last night, we thought you should sleep in. Hope you enjoyed it! Those ponies will be waiting for some water and hay.

8:00am: Breakfast. Grab that sack lunch.

9:00am: Saddle Up! Today you're heading for the Reichs Ranch. Lots of history there. Grub, a place to sleep, and fresh horses always available.

Noon: Visit with your group leaders while you enjoy your sack lunch. Story is—sometimes Mrs. Reichs didn't take a liking to some of the people that stopped at their place. They'd usually be dead come morning—so there are a few bodies buried around the place.

4:00pm: Back at the Ranch, its time to water those horses, put them on the picket and a good flake of hay. They've enjoyed a shorter day too! A cold one from the beverage wagon will taste good while you freshen up for the evening.

6:30pm: Supper.

7:30pm: Lots of history in these mountains. Tonight visit around the campfire with a historian that will tell you more.

Almost asleep and awoken by hoofbeats. Then the glint of a gold coin as it floats through the air. While saddles and bridles are taken from one good horse and put on another -you can smell the horse sweat and hear the jingle of spurs—back in the saddle.
